

Jarek Olszowka

International Head of Sustainable Finance
Nomura

Jarek is Nomura's International Head of Sustainable Finance and part of Nomura's EMEA Debt Syndicate. He leads Nomura's international sustainable finance efforts, focusing in particular on ESG bond origination, structuring and execution globally, including completing a number of landmark "first of their" kind ESG trades. He represents Nomura on the ICMA Green Bond Principles and Social Bond Principles Advisory Council 2019/20 and in a number of other ESG-dedicated industry bodies.

Jarek has over 15 years of financial services experience and prior to his current role he was a DCM hybrid capital originator and structurer at Nomura. He also held positions at Clifford Chance, JP Morgan, Goldman Sachs and CMS Cameron McKenna, working on Emerging Market capital markets and structured finance transactions. Additionally, Jarek is a fully qualified lawyer in England and Wales.

Jarek holds a Magna cum laude highest distinction Masters degree in Law from Warsaw University and additionally a combined Bachelors and Masters degree in Banking and Finance from the Warsaw School of Economics. He completed academic scholarships at Zurich University, Copenhagen Business School and the University of Sussex.